Biography

Knowledgeable. Professional. Reliable.

These are just a few words that describe the skill set Jean Toney brings to each consulting session, workshop, networking event and speaking engagement. The oldest of three “military brats”, Jean is a well-traveled, diverse speaker who has been exposed to many differences and similarities shared around the world. This exposure allows her to create powerful management solutions, strong program objectives and collaboration initiatives that engage and unite nonprofit leaders looking to achieve their visions and positively impact our world.

After obtaining a Bachelor of Science degree in Accounting from the University of South Carolina, Jean relocated to several cities in the Southeastern United States as a result of her husband’s career advancement, but she has always made time to volunteer her time and heart to various non-profits.

As Jean spent her professional accounting career in the private sector working as a Staff Accountant, Software Consultant, Financial Analyst and College Instructor, she continued to volunteer in the evenings and weekends and noticed similar growth and management struggles non-profit organizations faced regardless of their area of expertise, location or affiliation. These revelations led Jean to start identifying ways to help non-profits achieve their visions by encouraging the sharing of information and resources to strengthen and support one another.

The strategic sustainability plans, training sessions and networking opportunities that resulted ignited a fire and burning desire to serve our global community that continues to motivate Jean to this day. Led by the spirit of philanthropy, she decided to leave the private sector and completely dedicate herself to helping non-profits help others as a Non-Profit Consultant and Speaker.

Today, Jean facilitates and develops workshops and training sessions on IRS Tax Compliance for 501c3 organizations, Strategic Planning, Board Governance and Organizational Development, Financial Management and Accounting Practices, Non-Profit Start Up and Incorporations, and Church Business Administration procedures. Jean also delivers Keynote Speeches for various leadership conferences, convocations and discussions.

To further strengthen her expertise in organizational development, Jean has become an Examiner for the South Carolina Governor’s Quality Forum. As an Examiner, Jean evaluates the performance and organizational development of organizations in South Carolina that have applied for the Malcolm Baldrige National Quality Award, the only formal recognition of the performance excellence of U.S. organizations given by the President of the United States.

Jean currently lives in Columbia, South Carolina and is a wife (Anthony) and mother of three children (Ashleigh, Taylor & Anthony, III.). As an avid supporter of children’s involvement in sports, Jean spends her time traveling with her husband and children to basketball tournaments around the country to help student-athletes secure athletic scholarships.

WHAT OTHERS ARE SAYING ABOUT JEAN...

“Sister Toney has been a constant source of information for our network of pastors. Her presentations are informative, engaging and easy to understand. Strategies are presented in practical steps that can be implemented immediately. We have benefited greatly from her insight and practical advice and can still call on her to this day for advice.”

Bishop Allen Simmons, Presiding Prelate

“Jean came to our organization for times like these. She explained sustainability strategies to our Executive Board that were outstanding. She went on to explain these strategies and the implementation process to our member churches and worked with us to successfully complete our organizational realignment. Her contribution was immeasurable!”
